America’s Survival, Inc. is launching a sorosfiles.com website to shed light on the activities of the hedge fund billionaire. This PowerPoint is just one example of how Soros money supports openly Marxist groups.
The America’s Survival YouTube channel features many videos on America’s internal security and terrorism problem. This highlighted video features Dennis Trainor of “October 2011,” the group engaged in an illegal occupation of Freedom Plaza in Washington, D.C.
It is based at 1247 E Street SE in D.C. and is the same as the Alliance for Global Justice.
In 2006 the Open Society Institute gave the group $50,000. Another $50,000 was reported in 2004.

Key personnel:

Katherine Hoyt is National Co-Coordinator of Alliance for Global Justice and its Nicaragua Network program. She lived eighteen years in Latin America – two years in Chile and sixteen in Nicaragua.

James Jordan “has written a number of articles over the years for progressive publications, including the National Catholic Reporter, Peoples Weekly World, Fight Back! News, Narco News, Upside Down World, and Z Magazine.”

Chuck Kaufman, National Co-Coordinator of the Alliance for Global Justice, is a board member of the Latin America Solidarity Coalition and a leader of the LASC’s effort to build a stronger movement to oppose US militarism and the militarization of relations with Latin America. He was a founder of the Act Now to Stop War and End Racism (ANSWER) Coalition and is a board member of the Honduras Solidarity Network and a founder of the Venezuela Solidarity Network.

The Venezuela Solidarity Network, organized to provide support for Marxist Hugo Chavez in Venezuela, has a “steering committee” that includes the U.S. Peace Council, the old Communist Party USA front.

List of Latin American Solidarity Conference (April 8-10, 2011) endorsers includes Alliance for Global Justice, National Lawyers Guild, Freedom Road Socialist Organization, Center for Constitutional Rights, Code Pink, etc.
Juan Jacomino of the Cuban Interests Section spoke at the conference about efforts to free the “Cuban Five” spies.
The Alliance for Global Justice address is also the location for Code Pink, led by Medea Benjamin and (Obama fundraiser) Jodie Evans.
“Mexicans Without Borders” is (was) also based there

“We are the migrant people in their struggle of resistance and liberation.”

MSF & Immigrant Community Condemn KKK Organizing
The immigrant community in Prince William County has always argued that the anti-immigrant resolution passed by the Board of County Supervisors would create an environment that is hostile to people of color. The recent news that the KKK was distributing flyers in Manassas at the request of residents of Manassas is proof that such an environment is already taking root in the county. Anytime lawmakers pass initiatives that would, in practice, use race, ethnicity, and language to single out a segment of the population and try to drive them out of a community, they are laying the foundation for increased bigotry and hatred. Over the last few months anti-immigrant rhetoric has been spewing from the mouths of citizens and politicians alike, and has opened the door to racist organizations that share their goals. The reputation for intolerance that this county is developing as a result of this resolution will cause economic hardship. Few businesses will settle in a community where KKK and anti-human rights activity are evident. Diversity is the future of America and Prince William County, and any community that cannot respect all of its residents is destined to stymie its own economic growth.

The week long economic boycott in the county as well as the massive rally and march of over 7,000 people on Sunday, September 2 overwhelmingly achieved the goal that the immigrant community hoped to achieve. Business and county leaders have seen a glimpse of the potential economic devastation that can be caused when a segment of the community that spends consumer dollars and pays taxes is driven out. This resolution has brought unwanted national and international attention to the county. People are recognizing the problems that arise when local leaders overstep their powers and try to regulate immigration policy and enforcement. There are constitutional as well as practical reasons why immigration regulation has always been in the hands of the federal government.

The immigrant community of Prince William County calls upon its elected leaders to put an end to the attack on its people and rescind the anti-immigrant resolution. We must put our energies and efforts toward building a community that honors and respects all of its residents.

Occupy LA movement receives more support

English.news.cn  2011-10-19 11:07:17

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18 (Xinhua) -- Occupy Los Angeles (L.A.) protests are set to expand as some labor unions and immigration organizations on Tuesday threw their weight behind the movement.

The groups said that they will hold a march on Wednesday from downtown L.A., where big corporations and banks are located, to L.A. City Hall, where they will join the protesters and camp there.

The event, they said, is aimed at voicing their demands for eradicating Wall Street greed, ending attacks on the working people, granting full rights to immigrants and stopping the U.S. war machine.

Ian Thompson, spokesman for the ANSWER Coalition, told Xinhua that the main issue raised by protesters of both Occupy Wall Street and Occupy L.A. is the disparity of wealth in the United States.

With the joining of labor unions and immigration organizations, the protests can make a change, he added.

"We want jobs, we want peace, we want justice, we want full rights for all immigrants and we want to say that, and many people in Los Angeles agree with us. We want to bring them out to the streets," said Thompson.

Juan Jose Gutierrez from the Full Rights for Immigrants Coalition told Xinhua that eventually the occupation movement in the U.S. will move from occupation to articulating legislation laws to protect the rights of the people.
The answer lies here: Lynne Stewart is the National Lawyers Guild attorney convicted and imprisoned for aiding Islamic terrorism. This is a letter written on her behalf. (The Open Society Institute supported Stewart’s defense committee).
PSL stands for Party of Socialism and Liberation, a communist group. Thompson is a member of the PSL “Central Committee.” He signed this letter on behalf of Lynne Stewart.

Socialism and the legacy of the Soviet Union

By Brian Becker

The single biggest event that shaped global politics in the 20th century was the Russian Revolution of 1917, which gave birth to the Soviet Union. The first socialist government's existence was the pivot for world events in history's most turbulent and dynamic century. The destruction of the Soviet Union 74 years later in 1991 has been the dominant factor shaping global politics in the nearly 17 years since.

Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels wrote in 1848, "A specter is haunting Europe—the specter of communism." However, haunting the specter of communism may have appeared to the European bourgeoisie in the mid-1800s, it would seem mild compared to the undiluted hysteria directed by all the imperialist powers and old ruling classes against the actually-existing Soviet Union throughout the 20th century.

The victory of the Russian Revolution transformed the presentation of communism from an idea or an ideology into a living, breathing social and political experience. It was an attempt to consciously build a society based on the interests and needs of the working classes.

Communism's new identification with a state power was extremely positive for the world communist movement. The domestic programs, the radical reorganization of constitutional law and the revolutionary foreign policy of the new Soviet state spread the appeal of communism to nearly every corner of the globe. Millions of people were drawn into political life and the communist movement as the idea of workers' power took on flesh and bones.

In the colonized world, the Soviet message of self-determination and freedom drew the most advanced youth directly into newly founded communist parties. From China to Vietnam to South Africa, the banner of Soviet communism became synonymous not just with socialism but with the aspirations for national independence.

As the influence of communism spread throughout the 20th century to all corners of the world, every capitalist power brought to bear the weight of its media, politicians, universities and especially armies in a global struggle to counter Soviet influence.

The identification of communism with a state power expanded later to its political association with the governments in Eastern Europe, China, North Korea.

Revolution is the solution
02 November, 2009, 11:16

Despite only a small minority of Americans would support the idea of a revolution in the US, it is still worth trying to spread the message, Carl Dix of the Revolutionary Communist Party of America told RT.

“They say Barack Obama is a socialist and a communist – nothing could be farther from the truth. Obama is trying to save the capitalist system and is doing what he thinks is necessary to do that.”

“People [in America] don’t look at the world and how the world is being abused by their government in their name – this is a problem in this country.”
These are the U.S. affiliates of the International Communist Movement, the “Communist and Workers’ Parties and Organizations,” based in Belgium. The Freedom Road Socialist Organization (FRSO) has been raided by the FBI. to join FRSO, the means by which the recruitment was financed and arranged;

FARC, PFLP, Hezbollah and other FTOs which the FRSO and Kelly have supported, attempted to support or conspired to support:
Tom Burke of the Freedom Road Socialist Organization met Barack Obama in 2004 as Obama was running for U.S. Senate. Burke was subpoenaed as part of an ongoing FBI terrorism probe.

In a front page June 13, 2011, story about a major FBI terrorism investigation, The Washington Post reported that the targets include “Chicagoans who crossed paths with Obama when he was a young state senator and some who have been active in labor unions that supported his political rise.” The implication is that the trail could lead to the White House. One was Tom Burke. The Post noted that another one of the targets of the investigation, a union organizer named Tracy Molm, managed to arrange a meeting with Attorney General Eric Holder to talk about the investigation. Medea Benjamin has said she managed to have a few words with Holder as well to complain about the probes.
